ALIEN ANT FARM

Dryden Mitchell, vocals
Terry Corso, guitar
Tye Zamora, bass
Mike Cosgrove, drums

"Music does good things to people—it's one of those art forms everyone enjoys," says Alien Ant Farm frontman Dryden Mitchell. "It's magical when we play our stuff for fans and they light up. We take our music very seriously, but we're also a very tongue-in-cheek group. We want to keep that enjoyment going. Everything with us is a pun or a halfway joke, even if we're the only ones in on it."

Singer-songwriter Mitchell, guitarist Terry Corso, bassist Tye Zamora, and drummer Mike Cosgrove demonstrate their playful-yet-purposeful brand of music on ANThology. The band's major-label debut was produced by Jay Baumgardner, whose credits include Papa Roach, Orgy, Slipknot, and Coal Chamber. Corso calls the disc "new, emotional, romantic yet totally metal."

Thematically, Mitchell draws on relationships, fantasy, and remembrances of things past, frequently using his songs as therapy. He reveals, "This was the first time I've ever gotten chills from my own music because it hit so close to home. Many of the songs were written during a breakup. Writing them was better than me chasing someone around who didn't wanna be chased."

Comments Cosgrove, "No matter what Dryden's writing about, the lyrics are always sharp and witty. They can also take on different shades; when he sings them one way they mean one thing, and when he sings them another way, they can mean something else. We try to reflect that sonically with dynamics. Especially live, we try to keep the texture of the sound varied. At times it's low, almost quiet, but then it becomes noisy and ferocious."

Alien Ant Farm's personal and musical give-and-take began to gel in 1996 in Riverside, California, where the members' appetites for music were whetted at an early age. One of Mitchell's first inspirations was his father, a guitarist. "People would always ask my dad to play during family gatherings," he recalls. "Seeing how he changed the mood of the room made me want to do the same thing." Though Mitchell started out on guitar (check his chops on "Death Day"), friends prodded him to tune up his vocal chords. He lists the Beatles, Frank Zappa, Tracy Chapman, and Edie Brickell as influences. His admiration for these artists came to bear as he developed his own style singing for pre-Ant Farm bands.

As for Corso, his mother kept him well supplied with Kiss albums during his childhood. He later enrolled in a band workshop program sponsored by a local music store that enabled him to pursue his budding interest in drums, songwriting, and especially guitar. This was a springboard to playing in bands, including one with Cosgrove. Corso says of his musical intake, "I like everything from hip-hop and folk to punk and heavy metal. I'm a huge fan of Black Sabbath and Led Zeppelin, and I love Jeff Buckley because he's helped me through many a breakup."

Bassist Zamora's first instrument was also the guitar. His parents were into disco, and he remembers listening to numerous '70s superbands and imitating their styles. He confesses to becoming an accomplished air guitarist imitating the licks of Boston, Queen, and Steely Dan. He segued to bass when the likes of Stanley Clarke and Primus roused his interest. Zamora, too, honed his skills with Cosgrove, in a Primus cover band, in addition to other outfits. Among his many musical interests is a second career as an R & B songsmith.

Cosgrove taught himself to play drums as a kid and only began taking lessons in his teenage years. He says his family was a motivating factor in his current direction: "My whole family was into music. My grandpa played jazz trumpet, and going to the record store with my grandma was like going to the toy store." He cites Metallica, Guns N' Roses, Twisted Sister, and Michael Jackson as some of his early favorites, with his tastes now leaning toward Sting, Sade, Seal, Weezer—and Michael Jackson, still a constant on his CD player. Cosgrove's previous band situations engendered a fierce dedication to the skins. "I'd rather be sitting on a street corner banging on a bucket," he declares, "than working at even the best nine-to-five office job."

Eventually, Mitchell, Corso, Zamora, and Cosgrove gravitated toward each other. "Individually, we were trying to figure out who were the best players in the area," Mitchell recollects. "We kind of identified each other and started cheating on the bands we were playing with at the time, getting together after practices. We played our first show in 1996 on my birthday and have been together ever since."

NEW STRAND

Corso is credited with their unique name: "I was daydreaming at my dull desk job with my feet up, and I thought to myself, Wouldn't it be cool if the human species were placed on earth and cultivated by alien intelligence? Maybe the aliens added us to an atmosphere that was suitable for us, and they've been watching us develop and colonize, kind of like what a kid does with an ant farm, where the aliens are the kids and humans are the ants."

Noted almost from the beginning for their live shows, Alien Ant Farm gigged steadily throughout the western United States and Europe, playing on the Continent for huge festival audiences. Zamora describes their shows as "very intense, chaotic, and free-form," adding, "People get it right away. We've done shows for eight people and 8,000 people and have gone equally crazy for both. We don't use gimmicks or props—it's just straight-up energy. We want everyone to be entertained."

It wasn't long before a few adventurous radio programmers heard the buzz surrounding Alien Ant Farm and the group found their songs added to some rock specialty shows. Greatest Hits, the band's cheekily named debut album, emerged in 1999, garnering the title of "Best Independent Album" at the L.A. Music Awards.

AAF was the first signing to Papa Roach's New Noize label (which is administered in conjunction with DreamWorks Records). For both bands, this was more than a business arrangement. In fact, Alien Ant Farm and P-Roach share a camaraderie forged years ago when both were tearing it up on the Golden State club circuit. "Coming up with them was great," says Cosgrove. "They had a fan base in Northern California, and we had a fan base in Southern California, so we began swapping shows; we'd hook them up with gigs down here and they'd hook us up with gigs up there. There's a lot of mutual respect between us, and we've become good friends. We see the fire in them and they see the fire in us."

When Papa Roach began gaining prominence, they made sure their compadres had a shot at the limelight. Remembers Corso, "We'd always said, 'Whoever takes off first will help the other group up,' and that's the way it happened. They've been very vocal about us, which is priceless, and we can't thank them enough." P-Roach will take Alien Ant Farm on the road for an extensive outing in 2001.

Asked how their fans might feel about the Ant Farm's jump to the big leagues, Zamora says, "We're blue-collar musicians who've worked hard to get where we're at. We're not trying to be something we're not. This is real music coming from real people and it will always be that way for us." Echoes Cosgrove, "You can't pull anything over on the fans."

Part of what is real to Alien Ant Farm, and what has helped set them apart from other bands on the SoCal music scene, is their refusal to jump on any stylistic bandwagon. For instance, Zamora likens AAF's musical structures to those of '70s rock. "I remember when songs had a bed of music that created the mood, and the blanket on top was the guitar line," he says. "There was a constant movement that kept your mind busy, where you're locked into the sound and you can't let go. Our stuff strikes chords and tones that haven't been struck in a long time."

The quartet sees the chemistry sparking their rhythm section as another defining strength. Mitchell points out, "Tye and Mike are totally in tune with each other. They create that amazing foundation—sometimes I think the vocals and guitar are icing on the cake. Because those guys are so solid, we can keep it all very raw. We don't need to use a lot of effects. There's no distortion on the vocals. Everything isn't stacked to hell. We don't have to hide behind any of that stuff."

These uncompromising ideals extend to the band's personal interplay as well. Says Mitchell, "We're all friends and we're constantly joking around. We know each other's likes and dislikes, which makes for a good, strong unit. We have arguments, but there aren't any grudges anywhere. We have more important things to concentrate on—like our music."

ABOUT THE SONGS BY DRYDEN MITCHELL

COURAGE

This is about misunderstandings and reaching a boiling point in a relationship. When I wrote the lyrics, I pictured an argument with your better half. It's to the point that the girl's going to hit you, but it never actually crosses over to such brutality. I sing in the chorus, "You should try not to be so courageous," because you know that courage isn't going to last. It's like a "Jenga" game, right before the pieces collapse.

MOVIES

This is one of my favorites. It's a very honest, real story felt by everyone in the band. I compare a bad relationship to the movies. Lyrically, everything in it relates to film, like the line, "At slow speed we all seem focused." My writing used to be much more cryptic, but this song is more direct and it has a happier feel. Terry wrote a cool Pac-Man riff for it.

FLESH AND BONE

We're not the most religious people, but Tye suggested I write about God. The first thing that came to mind was bashing those fanatical people who force religion on me. But it seemed classier to write something positive about religion, something that embraces it. This song's about knowing there's something greater out there without exactly saying what it is. The Bible doesn't play into it, though I borrowed a few lines from it for the benefit of rhyme. It was challenging to write.

WHISPER

Terry asked why we even named the song "Whisper" because it's a very heavy, pissed-off song. The band was going through some tough times when we wrote it. We'd been showcasing for labels and midway through the set, the record executives would start whispering to each other. We're trying to play our best, but we're wondering what they're saying about us, or if they're even talking about us at all. I don't think we're bitter, just fed up with people whispering about us.

SUMMER

Summer is straight lovey-dovey and not supposed to be about anything particularly deep, but rather a cool play on words. Lyrically, I go through all the seasons. Throughout it, I say things like, "Tried to give you summer, but I'm winter/Wish I could make you spring, but I fall so hard."

STICKS AND STONES

Everyone has heard the saying that "Sticks and stones will break my bones but names will never hurt me." This is another one where I play with words. It's full of angst. I was reminiscing about past phone conversations that have led to arguments. They happen for no reason, just because one person is moody. The beat is driving and has a reggae vibe to it because the bass drum is constant.

ATTITUDE

This is my favorite song on the record. I'm not very good at relationships and have done bad things in the past. With "Attitude," I'm telling a girl that her feelings of rage are acceptable—everything she does is okay because the guy she's in a relationship with did such horrendous things. It has a cool Latin vibe.

STRANDED

This song is all about the ocean and has as many puns as I could put in there. My ex-girlfriend was really into whales and marine biology. She hated me at the time, so I thought I would try to woo her with this song. It didn't work. Maybe flowers and dinner would've been better.

WISH

This is the very first song we wrote—it's amazing it's lasted so long and has made it to the record. It relays the message that people should make their own thing happen and not worry about the critics out there. For example, my thing is music, and I tell people who criticize that to create their own wish. This is my dream—they should find their own thing instead of tearing into mine.

CALICO

This is basically a feel-good breakup song with a waltzy groove. I wasn't trying to be deep here—the words just sound cool when they're sung. When the guitar comes in, it creates a perfect intro for a yell.

DEATH DAY

This is pretty morbid, but I wrote it strictly for fantasy purposes. We've all gotten frustrated with certain people, sometimes to the point where you wish they would die. But you also realize that if they actually did die, you'd be devastated. I'm singing, "Papa's got a brand new body bag for you"—it's like James Brown's line "Papa's got a brand new bag," but cooler.

SMOOTH CRIMINAL

We're all big fans of Michael Jackson, and this cover is an ally for us. Terry and Tye were messing with it in the garage one day, and the riff screamed out to be heavy. We played with death metal bands while we were in Europe, and people would go ape shit when they heard our version. People that don't even like us like this song.

UNIVERSE

Awesome, moody, Radiohead-influenced. [Arranger] David Campbell turned it into a monster with his string section, but without making it corny. The lyrics relate to some unforgivable things I've done, things I could never share with anyone.

HIDDEN TRACK/ORANGE APPEAL

The title is another play on words, like "orange peel." It's made up of quick, little lines that reminded me of my childhood. I say "apples" and "oranges" in Spanish, and then refer to a family tree. Musically, it starts with nylon string acoustics, then slowly builds up. The vocals are out of key because I had a nice wine buzz on during the recording.

Guitar Notation Legend

Guitar Music can be notated three different ways: on a musical staff, in tablature, and in rhythm slashes.

RHYTHM SLASHES are written above the staff. Strum chords in the rhythm indicated. Use the chord diagrams found at the top of the first page of the transcription for the appropriate chord voicings. Round noteheads indicate single notes.

THE MUSICAL STAFF shows pitches and rhythms and is divided by bar lines into measures. Pitches are named after the first seven letters of the alphabet.

TABLATURE graphically represents the guitar fingerboard. Each horizontal line represents a string, and each number represents a fret.

HALF-STEP BEND: Strike the note and bend up 1/2 step.

BEND AND RELEASE: Strike the note and bend up as indicated, then release back to the original note. Only the first note is struck.

HAMMER-ON: Strike the first (lower) note with one finger, then sound the higher note (on the same string) with another finger by fretting it without picking.

TRILL: Very rapidly alternate between the notes indicated by continuously hammering on and pulling off.

PICK SCRAPE: The edge of the pick is rubbed down (or up) the string, producing a scratchy sound.

TREMOLO PICKING: The note is picked as rapidly and continuously as possible.

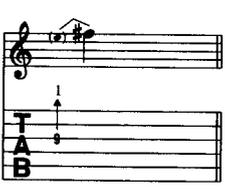

Notes:

WHOLE-STEP BEND: Strike the note and bend up one step.

PRE-BEND: Bend the note as indicated, then strike it.

PULL-OFF: Place both fingers on the notes to be sounded. Strike the first note and without picking, pull the finger off to sound the second (lower) note.

TAPPING: Hammer ("tap") the fret indicated with the pick-hand index or middle finger and pull off to the note fretted by the fret hand.

MUFFLED STRINGS: A percussive sound is produced by laying the fret hand across the string(s) without depressing, and striking them with the pick hand.

VIBRATO BAR DIVE AND RETURN: The pitch of the note or chord is dropped a specified number of steps (in rhythm) then returned to the original pitch.

GRACE NOTE BEND: Strike the note and immediately bend up as indicated.

VIBRATO: The string is vibratoed by rapidly bending and releasing the note with the fretting hand.

LEGATO SLIDE: Strike the first note and then slide the same fret-hand finger up or down to the second note. The second note is not struck.

NATURAL HARMONIC: Strike the note while the fret-hand lightly touches the string directly over the fret indicated.

PALM MUTING: The note is partially muted by the pick hand lightly touching the string(s) just before the bridge.

VIBRATO BAR SCOOP: Depress the bar just before striking the note, then quickly release the bar.

SLIGHT (MICROTONE) BEND: Strike the note and bend up 1/4 step.

WIDE VIBRATO: The pitch is varied to a greater degree by vibrating with the fretting hand.

SHIFT SLIDE: Same as legato slide, except the second note is struck.

PINCH HARMONIC: The note is fretted normally and a harmonic is produced by adding the edge of the thumb or the tip of the index finger of the pick hand to the normal pick attack.

RAKE: Drag the pick across the strings indicated with a single motion.

VIBRATO BAR DIP: Strike the note and then immediately drop a specified number of steps, then release back to the original pitch.
