NOTE.

THE accompanying trifle is published in the hope that it may supply what has been felt by the compiler to be a desideratum not only to students and lovers of Shakespeare but also to all who are interested in the wedding of appropriate melodies to 'immortal verse.' It should, at any rate, serve to indicate at once the extent of the poet's lyrical power and the wonderful attraction which the intrinsic music of his verse has had for the artist who seeks to 'all-express' himself in the ordered succession of harmonious sounds.

Not all the songs and snatches here given, it may be remarked, have been set to music, but for information as to the composers, &c., of the majority of those which have been so treated the reader is referred to A List of all the Songs and Passages in Shakspeare which have been set to Music, edited by F. J. Furnivall and W. G. Stone : New Shakspeare Society's Publications, Series viii. Miscellanies, No. 3.
