

Mary-Lou Peña, and Harrison Shaffer have all contributed their skill and effort to make my work more presentable, and to make this book better.

Finally, my deepest thanks go to the members of my family. My parents, Don and Mona Duncan, brought me up in a loving and enriching atmosphere that I will always remember fondly, and for which I will always be grateful. They, together with my parents-in-law, Wallace and Anne Anderson, have been unfailing in their emotional, moral, and material support. I express my affection for my brother, Scott, my sisters Susan, Lisa, and Sharon, and for their families. The same goes for my dear brothers and sisters in-law and their families. Most of all my love and gratitude go to my wife, Sharon, and to our children Caitlin, Drew, Sarah, Spencer, Mathieson, and Claire. As nice as it is to participate in scholarly discussions, all these beloved people remind me how much more there is to life than research, and how glad I am for that fact.
